It is a 2D content-generation/editing game engine and a dedicated server for playing games. It offers the tools for creating new types of games and content creation and provides access to a large community of gamers. There are many small software projects under development and available in source code (for example, our own WorldForge server). The server also supports and has the tools for hosting games, either online or locally. WorldForge allows for real-time game development with collaborative communities. 3D games, editing tools, storytelling tools, etc. Find it here: To play and watch some of the videos, visit Resource Library 1.) The About Us page and the Game Development page will tell you who we are, what we do, and what we do. There is a very good chance we'll have a few short sentences explaining our history. 2.) We talk about the games we make in the Developer Update page. It's where you'll find out about our recent progress and what we
